John Wass is President of the Great Lakes JMP Users Group. He is an avid ham radio enthusiast, as well as amateur astronomer. As his main loves of life are science and science fiction, he found early on that both were contained in his beloved Donald Duck comic books with which he grew up (at least partially). He served for a number of years as a senior statistician at Abbott Laboratories and presently, when not writing reviews, refereeing papers, and consulting, fights for time to indulge his passion for statistical pharmacogenomics.
